MEDIA & FILM STUDIES TOURS

Our itineraries have proven popular for their variety of specialist visits, including studio tours and workshops to further your students' knowledge about the media and film industries as well as a practical insight into media production. Our trips provide a wealth of exploration, wonder and learning.

APPRECIATE / DRAW / UNDERSTAND / DEVELOP DEMONSTRATE / RESPOND / APPLY / ANALYSE

The service from start to finish was excellent, this is the best trip we have organised as a media department. The Warner Brothers tour is particularly enjoyable and informative, the students enjoyed this the most.

Warren Comprehensive School

We investigated six companies and EST provided by far the best value for money with impressive organisation and support structure. Thank you very much for making this an outstanding trip for every member of our party.

LOS ANGELES

Nothing can match the allure of Hollywood for Film & Media Students. From finding their favourite movie star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame, to studio and backlot tours, school trips to LA are unforgettable.

POPULAR ITINERARY

Day 1: Arrive in the City of Angels and sunshine on America's West Coast. Hit the iconic Venice Beach and Sunset Strip!

Day 2: It's lights, camera action as you spend the day at Universal Studios enjoying rides, shows and a real movie studio.

Day 3: Go behind the scenes on a Warner Bros Studio Tour to get a rare glimpse of Hollywood at work, through back lots, sound stages, and the sets of a hit television show.

Day 4: On a Guided Tour of Hollywood, see the stars on the Walk of Fame, the famous sign and the Chinese Theatre before you walk the red carpet on a Dolby Theatre Tour.

Day 5: Indulge in some retail therapy on Santa Monica Boulevard, before you head to the airport with a head full of memories and dreams!

Day 6: Early morning arrival in the UK, tired and inspired!

LONDON

London is home to the HQ of the majority of the UK's top television companies, all of the UK's national newspapers are edited here and it is also the centre of the British Film Industry. There are many ways to inspire your budding TV and film makers on a visit to London.

POPULAR ITINERARY

Day 1: Travel by rail or coach into the heart of the capital. Take part in a masterclass at the London Film Academy in all aspects of film making from production, cinematography, documentary, make-up and many more. Get some great views of the city skyline on a ride on the London Eye.

Day 2: Complement the studio tour at Warner Bros. Studio Tours - Harry Potter with a workshop which uses the film series to illustrate the wider context and theory of film making. Return to the capital to see a screening at the BFI IMAX Theatre.

Day 3: Lose yourself in Bond memorabilia at the 'Bond in Motion' exhibition at the London Film Museum. Follow this with a session at the BBFC to learn all about media regulation in the UK. End your day with a pre-theatre meal and hit West End Show.

Day 4: Take a tour of the London Dungeons before you head home.
